Research Experience

Economic Researcher

Simon Fraser University

Dec 2019 – Dec 2023

Burnaby, Canada

Policy Analysis & Economic Impact Assessment (2019–2021)

- Led cross-jurisdictional evaluation of anti-discrimination legislation across Japanese prefectures using difference-in-differences in Stata, identifying regional policy variation and heterogeneous effects.
- Developed and executed simulation models in MATLAB to project long-term economic impacts of policy interventions.
- Created geospatial visualization tools using QGIS to present demographic trends, enhancing stakeholder understanding of regional policy implications.
- Translated technical findings into practical policy recommendations, highlighting implications for legislative reform.

Stakeholder Analysis & Quantitative Research (2022–2023)

- Conducted multi-jurisdictional analysis of COVID-19 vaccine mandates across U.S. states, assessing how industry contributions shaped public health policy adoption and implications for healthcare access.
- Developed data acquisition strategy that successfully integrated multiple disparate datasets (1M+ records) using R.
- Applied econometric methods (logit and OLS models) to assess influences on decision-making processes in Stata.
- Maintained objectivity while communicating nuanced results on politically sensitive topics to diverse audiences.

Labour Market Program Evaluation (2023)

- Led national evaluation of South Korea's military conscription policy using regionally representative panel survey data and instrumental variable regression in Stata and R.
- Distinguished between extensive and intensive margin effects, providing evidence-based insights for workforce policy reform.
- Developed policy recommendations highlighting opportunities to improve labour market outcomes through program redesign.
- Collaborated with research team to ensure methodological rigor and validity of findings.
