Professional Experience

Term Assistant Professor of Practice

Jan 2026 – Present

SFU School of Public Policy

Vancouver, Canada

- Taught PLCY 824: Analysis, Formulation, and Evaluation of Social Policy to Master of Public Policy students, covering econometric methods, macroeconomic modeling, program evaluation, and evidence-based policy analysis. Topics included labour economics, development economics, productivity, international trade, and criminal justice policy.
- Designed course materials and case studies, and advised students on writing effective policy briefs and proposals using quantitative methods and economic reasoning to address real-world policy challenges.
- Instruct PLCY 801: Economic Foundations of Policy Analysis I for Master of Public Policy students, introducing core microeconomic principles, market mechanics, and analytical tools for policy evaluation.

Research Experience

Economic Researcher

Dec 2019 – Oct 2024

Simon Fraser University

Burnaby, Canada

Causal Inference & Policy Evaluation (2019–2024)

- Owned a quasi-experimental evaluation of anti-discrimination legislation across Japanese prefectures end-to-end, building a difference-in-differences causal model in Stata.
- Analyzed heterogeneous treatment effects on employment and labour force participation, identifying which subgroups were most affected.
- Built simulation models in MATLAB to generate long-term counterfactual projections and stress-test findings.
- Built geospatial visualizations in QGIS to communicate trends to non-technical stakeholders.
- Translated empirical findings into a set of concrete, actionable recommendations for decision-makers.

Political Economy & Public Policy Analysis (2022–2024)

- Led a multi-jurisdictional analysis of COVID-19 vaccine mandate adoption across U.S. states, isolating the effect of industry political contributions on policy outcomes.
- Designed and built a large-scale data pipeline in R, consolidating administrative, legislative, and demographic datasets.
- Applied econometric models to identify statistically significant determinants of policy adoption.
- Communicated findings on a sensitive, high-scrutiny topic with full methodological transparency.

Labour Market Program Evaluation (2023–2024)

- Directed a national evaluation of South Korea's military conscription policy using panel survey data, from research design through final analysis.
- Applied instrumental variable methods to address selection bias and isolate causal impacts.
- Distinguished extensive- vs. intensive-margin effects on employment and wages.
- Delivered evidence-based insights that directly informed workforce policy decisions.
- Provided methodological guidance to collaborators to maintain econometric rigor across the project.

Academic Integrity and Online Learning (2020)

- Quantified academic-integrity risk from the shift to remote course delivery, auditing course materials for exposure across two distinct channels.
- Identified vulnerabilities in the remote assessment system and evaluated interventions under legal and practical constraints.
- Delivered a set of actionable recommendations to department leadership.
- Findings informed a department-wide instructor communication and a subsequent Faculty-level meeting on the issue.
